

There needs to be no sort of broadcast flag, or any other copy protection forced on the American consumer. If the media companies are so worried about things being copied, maybe they should step down and let someone else produce the shows for them.